 Young graduates and economic recession: Lessons from the pandemic to prevent the (re)incidence of mental health symptoms
The International Journal of Health Planning and Management
VOL. 39 ISSUE 2 - PP. 196-203 - 2024 - Suleman, Fátima; Carvalho, Diana
Economic conditions affect the youth labour market and can leave deep scars. This exploratory study examines the emotional responses and mental health symptoms of young graduates during their transition into the labour market in the pandemic context. It draws on 42 news articles with statements from 86 graduates from a set of European and non-European countries. The graduates had jobs or internships cancelled, numerous applications unanswered or were dismissed from jobs they had recently started. Young people adopt a variety of coping strategies, which are often invisible and ca...

Accelerating Innovation in Primary Care to Support Adolescent Health Discussions
Jensen, Brian P.; DiFiore, Gabrielle; Powell, Maura; ... Fiks, Alexander G.

Adolescent strengths and risks are not routinely captured in systematized and actionable ways in pediatric primary care. To address this problem, we developed a data collection. AHQ development used innovation methods and measured feasibility and acceptability outcomes. Scaling and postscaling outcomes included Reac (proportion of eligible adolescents who completed the AHQ), and Maintenance (monthly completion rates). AHQ development led to a tool that was feasible and ai
